

Providing cultural mediation between communities and health and social service systems

Because they are often members of the communities they serve, CHWs create a strong relationship of trust with their clients. They are very effective at connecting members of these communities with health and human service providers, insurance coverage and sources of appropriate, on-going health care.

