

Assuring access to needed services

CHWs serve as connectors between community health and human services and those who need them. CHWs may fill this role by providing information, or even transportation to necessary appointments. CHWs often follow-up with individuals to ensure that they have received the care they needed and are following prescribed treatments.

